

MISS "DAISY" VAIL MARRIED.

A BEAUTIFUL WEDDING AT MILLBROOK YESTERDAY.

MILLBROOK, N. Y., Sept. 17.—The event of the season with the Summer colony at the picturesque resort of Millbrook, Dutchess County, this State, was the marriage to-day of Miss L. Grovenc Vail, ("Daisy," as she is best known,) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Vail of New-York, to James Converse of Boston.

As the bride has a host of social acquaintances in and out of New-York, and as the groom is a prominent Bostonian, interest in the wedding was wide. Had Mr. and Mrs. Vail not been in mourning for their only son the wedding would have been very large. As it was, the invitations were limited to relatives and intimate friends, and the wedding was a quiet, informal affair.

At 9:25 o'clock this morning a special car left the Grand Central Station for Millbrook with about fifty guests from the city and vicinity. The marriage occurred at 1 o'clock.

The floral decorations in Mr. Vail's beautiful new Summer home overlooking the village were exquisite. The pillars around the broad piazzas were wound with golden rod, cardinal flowers, and ox-eyed daisies. Over and around the doorways were draped Autumnal convolvuli fresh from the woods. Wide-spreading palms were effectively distributed and roses were banked upon the mantelpieces.

The service was performed in the music room, a circular chamber in polished woods and with delicately-tinted walls and ceiling. The guests were arranged so as to form a wide aisle. Mr. John A. Boyd and Mr. Frederick W. Jones, Jr., acted as ushers.

Promptly at 1 o'clock, as the orchestra struck up the "Lohengrin" Wedding March, the Rev. Dr. Cornelius B. Smith of St. James's Church, New-York, and the Rev. Charles Pickels of Millbrook entered the music room, followed by the groom with his best man, Henry Converse, his brother; Miss Marion Wing, the maid of honor, and the bride with her father.

The bride wore an Empress Josephine gown of white corded silk richly trimmed about the waist and around the bottom of the skirt and train with pearls and rhinestones. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white daisies and wore a handsome ring presented by the Rev. Dr. Charles Hoffman of All Angels' Church, New-York, a diamond corsage cluster, a gift from Wilson G. Hunt, and a diamond coronet glistening in her hair, a gift of the groom. She made a beautiful bride.

Miss Marion Wing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wing of New-York and Millbrook, wore a gown of lilac chiffon.

After the reception and breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Converse drove away amid a shower of rice and the cheers of the guests, with an old shoe tied to the back of their carriage by a white satin ribbon. They will be gone over a month, going as far West as the Dakotas.

Among the guests at the wedding were Mr. E. W. Converse, father of the groom; Mrs. Frederick Converse, Mrs. Ned Converse, Mrs. James B. Converse, Mrs. Lathrop Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. Cobb of Boston, Mr. Oakleigh Hunt, Mr. William Bayne, Miss Bayne, Miss Carrie T. Davison, Mr. and Mrs. Howland Croft, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Jones, Mr. Arthur T. Sullivan, Miss Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Bunker of Morristown, N. J.; Miss Houston, Miss Preston, Clarence Beverly Davison, Mr. and Mrs. Wing, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Boice, Mr. William H. Hoffman, Mrs. Edward S. Vail, Mr. and Mrs. M. Bedell Vail, Mrs. Frederick C. Dexter of Brooklyn; Mr. D. R. Emerson, and Andrew S. March.

Over 2,000 wedding announcements will be issued.
